Senators aim to huddle with FBI on gun law

Thursday, March 10, 2005

WASHINGTON (AP) -New Jersey Sens. Jon Corzine and Frank Lautenberg joined three of their colleagues yesterday to request a meeting with FBI Director Robert Mueller to talk about whether terror suspects should be allowed to purchase guns in the United States.

The senators sent the letter a day after the Government Accountability Office issued a report saying more than 40 terror suspects were allowed to buy guns in the United States last year because background checks showed they had no felony convictions and weren't illegal immigrants.

Under current federal law, belonging to a suspected terrorist organization does not prohibit a person from owning a gun, the GAO noted in its study.

In remarks to a House subcommittee Tuesday, Mueller said that perhaps the law could be altered.
